lavardin: a very french inspector

CLAUDE CHABROL

In Claude Chabrol's beloved detective series, police inspector Jean Lavardin (the iconic Jean Poiret) is sent out of town to investigate mysterious murders. The charming and laconic Lavardin will employ both brawn and brains to solve the complex cases, but not before he's had his customary breakfast of fried eggs and paprika.

With characteristic witty black humour and filled with references to Alfred Hitchcock, Henri-Georges Clouzot and Orson Welles, this depiction of the hidden cruelty and hypocrisy of provincial life is the epitome of Claude Chabrol's mainstream cinema. These two suspense classics feature A-list French actors in supporting roles, including Stéphane Audran, Michel Bouquet, Lucas Belvaux, Jean-Claude Brial, and Bernadette Lafont.

"A forgotten Classic of the French New Wave."

Ed Howard

1962, ADIEU PHILIPPINE is on the cover of Les Cahiers du cinéma with the headline : "NOUVELLE VAGUE". Jacques Rozier's first feature screened at Critics' Week in Cannes. It was preceded by an overly flattering introduction by Jean-Luc Godard who declared it "quite simply the best French film of recent years". Jacques Rozier's work captured the spirit of the younger generation in France in the late 1950s and early 60s, perhaps more successfully than any of his contemporaries. His work was quintessentially New Wave: freewheeling, naturalistic and spontaneous.

henri-georges clouzot's inferno

RUXENDREA MEDREA & SERGE BROMBERG

"The results are like nothing you've seen before: Clouzot seemed to be reinventing the medium itself."
Boston Globes

In 1964, Henri-Georges Clouzot's production of L'Enfer came to a halt. The footage, forgotten for over half a century, were recently found and are more breathtaking than legend had predicted, telling us of what would have been a unique film, an ill-fated film production, and of Henri-Georges Clouzot himself.

CHARLES CHAPLIN

"This masterpiece of Chaplin created a style which inspired Lubitsch; its imprint can be found on his best comedies." René Clair

Let's celebrate one of Charles Chaplin's masterpieces, starring two of Hollywood's greatest stars of the 1920s – Edna Purviance and Adolphe Menjou – and featuring a soundtrack composed by Charles Chaplin himself. Highly acclaimed by filmmakers from Ernst Lubitsch to Martin Scorsese, this brilliant yet subtle Parisian fresco reveals the dramatic genius of the King of Comedy.

Against the wishes of their tyrannical parents, Jean and Marie decide to elope to Paris. The sudden death of Jean's father makes it impossible for him to meet her at the station, and Marie heads for Paris alone. A year later, Jean finds her in the arms of a rich and decadent playboy... and tragedy ensues.

die nibelungen

100th anniversary

FRITZ LANG

Perhaps the most stately of Fritz Lang's two-part epics, the five-hour DIE NIBELUNGEN is a courageous and hallucinatory work. Its extraordinary set-pieces, archetypal themes, and unrestrained ambition have proved an inspiration for nearly every fantasy cycle that has emerged on-screen since - from Star Wars to The Lord of the Rings.

Adapted from the myth that was also the basis for Richard Wagner's Ring cycle of operas, Fritz Lang's epic offers its own startling expressionistic power - a summit of the director's artistry.
